Magic in the European History of Religions: Texts and Traditions, 7.5 ECTS

What is the role of magic in the European history of religions? Who practiced magic? Why and how did they do it? This online course introduces the most important magical texts and traditions that have flourished in Europe from late antiquity to the present day. We will read magical texts in translation and discuss their context and history of use. Participants will learn about the overlaps between magic, science, and religion, what magical texts tell us about transcultural encounters between religions, and the enduring significance of magic in European culture.

Instructors: Egil Asprem and Andrea Franchetto

Apply now for Spring 2021:
https://www.su.se/english/search-courses-and-programmes/rhg511-1.511721

Image Credit: Wellcome Library, London. L0025198
Compendium about magic; c. 1775.

Department of Ethnology, History of Religions and Gender Studies